

NOHA Intensive Programme 7-13 September 2015

Humanitarians & future humanitarians in the run-up to the World Humanitarian Summit (WHS)

Co-organised by the University of Warsaw and Aix-Marseille University

Dear Participants,

Humanitarian Action is more relevant than ever. There are an unprecedented number of affected people, namely those who are forced to leave their homes (refer to the 2015 IP Course Manual).

Humanitarian Action is also presently going through an important, collective transformation process, with, in particular, the World Humanitarian Summit (WHS) which aims to address the most pressing humanitarian issues and reshape the way humanitarian stakeholders respond to crises across the globe. The WHS is expected to improve the efficiency of humanitarian action, through, inter alia, innovation, greater mobilization and better disaster risk reduction. The WHS process of consultations and contributions is on-going and the NOHA IP takes place with this process in mind. The WHS themes and topics give shape to the 2015 Intensive Programme.

The presentations you will attend, although not exhaustive, will give you a solid basis for the start of the year and of your career. The sessions are based on the WHS themes and will provide you with a solid awareness on “how it works” and “how humanitarian action could be more efficient”. The IP will not conceal the most difficult aspects of the humanitarian sector, including the reality of the situation of people in conflict, which is increasingly dire; the problems that humanitarian action is not able to solve; and, above all, security issues.

Participants should therefore fully engage both during the programme and through their final assignments to build into NOHA’s understanding of the transformation of Humanitarian Action and possibly contribute to the process itself.

The priority has been given to assistance and protection activities. Alongside your discovery of activities, you will meet actors. However, precedence has been given to activities over actors, precisely since the WHS process is an attempt to mobilize more actors, including non-conventional ones.

The IP is deliberately conceived as a series of working sessions. This does not preclude you from networking with fellow students, with whom you are entering into the humanitarian sector. On the contrary, the numerous workshops and the collective activities of the security simulation are meant to provide you with opportunities to establish links.

Although the days will be long and intensive, they do provide you with an opportunity to fully engage and delve deeply into the topics.

This Intensive Program is dedicated to the ones who suffer and those who try to bring them relief.

We have deliberately made the choice of pedagogy rather than gastronomy and sophistication. We have chosen correct but plain rooms and meals, as a testimony of respect towards people in need.

Finally, please note that the film you will see addresses difficult themes relating to gender based violence in situations of conflict and may at times be difficult to watch. Your motivation and willingness to discover the realities of the field and how relief works are at the basis of programming the projection of such a film.

We wish you a successful start of the 2015-16 academic year.

Film projection and discussion

18.45-21.20	The man who mends women – The wrath of Hippocrates, a film by Thierry Michel Dr Mukwege was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize for his commitment to protesting against the sexual violence perpetrated against women in Kivu, in the east of the Congo. He is known as “the man who repairs women”. Over the past 16 years, he has treated over 40,000 patients, giving them the hope of rebuilding a life for themselves as women. In October 2012, Dr Mukwege was the victim of a second attempt on his life and miraculously escaped death. After a short period of exile in Belgium, he returned to Bukavu after his patients bought him a plane ticket back. This film is the portrait of an outstanding man, a preacher, doctor, and family man, whose path and tireless struggle against barbarism is of interest to all those who fight to put an end to these war crimes.
